My first most vivid and broad impression of the identity of things seems to me to have been achieved on a memorably raw afternoon towards the evening. At such a time I found out for sure that this bleak place overgrown with nettles was the cemetery; and that Philip Pirrip, late in this parish, and also Georgiana's wife of the above, was dead and buried; and that Alexander, Bartholomew, Abraham, Tobias, and Roger, the aforementioned children, were also dead and buried; and that the dark flat wilderness outside the cemetery, cut through with ditches and mounds and gates, with scattered cattle that fed it, was the marsh; and that the low line of lead beyond was the river; and that the distant wild cave from which the wind rushed was the sea; and that the little bundle of chills grows afraid of it all and begins to cry, was Pip. Keep your sound! shouted a terrible voice as a man started up among the graves next to the church porch. "Keep quiet, you little devil, or I'll slit your throat! A timid man, all in coarse gray, with a big iron on his leg. A man without a hat, and with broken shoes, and with an old cloth tied around his head. A man who had been... A classic work of Victorian literature, Great Expectations tells the story (from a first person tale), of young Pip, an orphaned boy adopted by a blacksmith's family who has good luck and great expectations, and then loses both. Through this rise and fall, however, Pip learns to find happiness. He learns the importance of friendship and the importance of love and, of course, becomes a better person for it. Your IP address has been automatically blocked from accessing the Project Gutenberg website, www.gutenberg.org. This is because the geoIP database shows that your address is in the German country. Diagnostic information: Blocked at germany.shtml Your IP address: 176.9.137.118 Referral URL (if available): Browser: Mozilla/5.0 (Windows NT 6.1) AppleWebKit/537.36 (KHTML, like Gecko) Chrome/41.0.2228.0 Safari/537.36 Date: 26-Oct-2020 00:09:13 GMT Why does this block occur? A A in Germany ordered that access to certain elements of the Project Gutenberg collection be blocked from Germany. Project Gutenberg considers that the Court does not have jurisdiction in the case, but until the matter is resolved, it will be in accordance. For more information about the German lawsuit, and the reason for blocking the whole of Germany instead of individual elements, please visit the PGLAF's information page on the German lawsuit. For more information about the legal advice Project Gutenberg has received on international issues, please visit PGLAF's International Copyright Guidance for Project Gutenberg This page in German Automated Translation (via Google Translate): translate.google.com How can I unblock? All IP addresses in Germany are blocked. This block will remain in place until the legal guidance is changed. If your IP address spread is incorrect Use the Maxmind GeoIP demo to verify the status of your IP address. Project Gutenberg updates its list of IP addresses approximately monthly. Occasionally, the website mis-applies a block from a previous visitor. Since blocks are used for a moment, try again later to visit if Maxmind shows your address as being outside germany.If your IP address is displayed by Maxmind to be outside germany and you were temporarily blocked, another problem is that some web browsers mistakenly cache the block. Trying a different web browser can help. Or clear the history of your site visits. I have other questions or need to report an error Please email the diagnostic information above to help2020 @ pglaf.org (remove spaces around @) and we will try to help. The software we use sometimes flags false positives – that is, blocks that should not have occurred. Apologies if this happened because human users outside Germany who make use of eBooks or other site features should almost never be blocked. Last Updated: 28 January 2020, 2020.
